

A large water tower is the central focus of the image. The tower's body is covered in a vibrant mural. The upper portion of the mural shows a clear blue sky with soft, white clouds. Below the sky, a kookaburra is depicted in profile, facing right. The bird has a grey head and neck, a dark beak, and brown and white patterned feathers on its body. It is perched on a small, weathered wooden post. The lower part of the mural shows a rolling landscape with green hills and a body of water. The tower's conical roof is made of metal panels and has a small structure on top. A ladder or access structure is visible on the right side of the tower.
